Details:

Dr Peishan Jiang is a Specialist Periodontist at Collins Street Specialist Centre whose clinical focus is managing long-term gum disease and disease around dental implants. She studied dentistry at Griffith University in Queensland and stayed on to complete her Doctor of Clinical Dentistry in Periodontology there, with postgraduate training in periodontics and dental implantology. Her work covers gum and implant infections, implant placement, bone and gum grafting, sinus lifts, crown lengthening and periodontal regeneration. She sees patients on Level 8 of the Manchester Unity Building, 220 Collins Street, Melbourne.

What qualifications does Dr Jiang hold?

As shown on our team page:

BDS (Griff) : Bachelor of Dental Science, Griffith University, completed with academic excellence

DClinDent (Griff) : Doctor of Clinical Dentistry in Periodontology, Griffith University

Her Dental Board of Australia registration number is DEN0002220847, and she is registered as a specialist in periodontics.

Teaching and research

While studying, Peishan was active in the clinical teaching and supervision of undergraduate dental students, and she played a key role in Griffith's Academic Policy Steering Group. She has an interest in translational dental research, the work of turning laboratory and clinical findings into everyday care, and she has presented her research at a conference of the International Association for Dental Research.

What treatments does Dr Jiang provide?

Within our periodontics service, her clinical work includes:

non-surgical and surgical treatment of periodontitis, the chronic gum infection that can destroy the bone around teeth

non-surgical and surgical treatment of peri-implantitis, a similar inflammation around dental implants placing dental implants

bone grafting and sinus lifts, which build up bone where there is not enough to hold an implant gum grafting for receding gums

crown lengthening

periodontal regeneration, which aims to rebuild lost support around teeth

How does she approach long-term gum care?

Chronic gum and implant disease usually needs ongoing management rather than a single course of treatment. Peishan regularly works with other dental professionals, including your own dentist and hygienist, so that treatment is followed by a maintenance program aimed at keeping the gums stable over time. How well the gums respond varies, and home care and regular reviews play a large part.

Outside dentistry

Peishan enjoys painting and travelling, and spends time exploring Melbourne's fashion and cultural scene.

Where can you check her registration?

Dr Peishan Jiang's registration is listed on the public register at ahpra.gov.au , which shows her specialist field.

Before your first appointment

If you have an implant that has started to bleed, feel tender or look different, or gums that bleed or recede, make a note of when it began. Bring details of any implant work done elsewhere (the clinic, the year and, if you have it, the implant brand), along with your medicines list, X-rays and health fund card.

Our other specialist periodontists

Peishan practises alongside Dr Simon Hinckfuss , Dr James van den Berg , Dr Nupur Kataria and Dr Ahmed El Hadidi .

Frequently asked questions

What is peri-implantitis?

Peri-implantitis is inflammation and infection of the gum and bone around a dental implant. It can cause bleeding, swelling and loss of the bone that holds the implant. Treatment ranges from deep cleaning to surgery, depending on how far it has progressed, and is followed by regular maintenance.

Why might I need a sinus lift before an implant?

In the upper back jaw, the sinus can sit close to the area where an implant is needed, leaving too little bone. A sinus lift adds bone beneath the sinus floor so there is enough height to support an implant. Whether you need one is decided from your scans.

Do I need my dentist to refer me to Dr Jiang?

Our published guidance is that you do not need a referral to see our specialists. A letter or X-rays from your dentist are helpful if you have them. Call (03) 9650 2726 to make an appointment.

How often will I need maintenance visits after treatment?

It depends on how your gums respond and on your risk factors. Dr Jiang will recommend a review schedule, which may be shared with your regular dentist or hygienist.
